Roosevelt For Hughes, Whole Progressive Party Falls In Line

CANDIDACY OF HUGHES GIVEN ENDORSEMENT

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]
CHICAGO, June 26.—By a vote of 32 to 6, with nine members declining to vote, the national committee of the progressive party at the end of a stormy session endorsed Charles E. Hughes for president.

The fight in the committee to endorse Hughes was led by George W. Perkins of New York, James R. Garfield of Ohio, and Chester H. Rowell of California.

The radical element in the committee, represented by Matthew Hale of Massachusetts, Bainbridge Colby of New York, Henry F. Cochems of Wisconsin, and John M. Parker of Louisiana, vigorously protested against the endorsement of any candidate for president and fought the majority at every step of the program.

The minority's first move was to insist on an open meeting of the committee which it won, after a number of the committee members led by John M. Parker of Louisiana, bolted the meeting.

After Secretary Oscar King Davis read Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's letter in which he finally declined the presidential nomination of the party and urged that Charles E. Hughes be supported in order to defeat President Wilson, the committee voted to accept the colonel's declination and took a recess for luncheon.

At the beginning of the afternoon session Chairman Matthew Hale of Massachusetts ruled that the next order of business was to fill the vacancies on the ticket caused by the refusal of Colonel Roosevelt to run.

Bainbridge Colby of New York presented the name of Victor Mordock, chairman of the national committee who is now on his way to China, as the party's candidate for president.

This led to a clash between Raymond Robins of Illinois and Mr. Colby in which the tie was passed. Mr. Robins said Mr. Mordock had told him he would not accept the presidential nomination and the proposition to run a third party ticket was defeated after a spirited debate by a vote of 31 to 15. James R. Garfield of Ohio then introduced a resolution endorsing Hughes for president and directing the executive committee of the progressive party to co-operate with the resolutions committee.

Henry F. Cochems of Wisconsin, raised the point that the committee had no authority to endorse any candidate and that its power was limited to the filling of the vacancy on the ticket caused by the refusal of Colonel Roosevelt to run.

Chairman Hale ruled that the motion to endorse or recommend the republican candidate for president was out of order and a debate of several hours followed.

Finally James R. Garfield appealed from the chair and was sustained in his contention by a vote of 32 to 14. During the discussion Raymond Robins opposed making any endorsement and indicated that he would support President Wilson if the progressives did not put a ticket in the field.

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]
CHICAGO, June 26.—The resolutions adopted endorsing Hughes offered by James R. Garfield, of Ohio, read in part as follows:

"Whereas, a statement issued by this committee in January last and the platform adopted by the progressive national convention set forth that putting aside all partisan considerations in view of the existing world and national conditions, we would work with any man or party who saw the nation's need and put forth a leader fit to meet it; and

"Whereas, we believe with Colonel Roosevelt that in nominating Charles E. Hughes of New York the republican party has put forth such a leader, we therefore endorse and concur in the recommendation of Colonel Roosevelt that we support Mr. Hughes.

"Resolved, that we hereby direct the national executive committee to co-operate with Mr. Hughes and take any steps that they deem proper effectively to prosecute the campaign.

"Resolved, that we leave to the state committees the determination of action in their respective states and recommend that whatever action they take be taken after conference with the national executive committee.

"The committee earnestly desires that the power of the progressive movement, which has largely without political victory, accomplished so great a change in the aspect of American affairs, be

NOW ITALIANS ARE FORCING AUSTRIANS TO GENERAL RETREAT

ORPET FIRST WITNESS IN OWN DEFENSE

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]
WAUKESHA, Ill., June 26.—William H. Orpet, the 26-year-old University of Wisconsin student charged with the murder of Marion Lambert, his school sweetheart, took the witness stand this afternoon and told in direct examination of his meeting with her on February 9 and of her death.

Adjournment for the night interrupted the recital which will be resumed tomorrow.

He did not see her take poison nor have it about her, he testified, but he saw her dying convulsions. He supported the theory that the cyanide of potassium, which caused her death was taken in powdered form and not in solution, as insisted by expert toxicologists called by the prosecution.

"I noticed a white powder on her face and one hand," he said. "The medicine," which he gave her to relieve a supposed delicate condition, he said, was simply molasses and water. He said that he knew she could not be in a delicate condition and adopted this subterfuge to relieve her mind, as she kept insisting in letters that she was alarmed at her condition.

The witness gave an innocent interpretation of the alibi letters which he addressed to his mother and to Marion. He left Madison February 8, in the hands of his friend Otto Peterson he left the two missives, post dated February 9 to be mailed on the latter date. He explained that his own parents would have objected to his making the trip and that Marion's parents objected to him. In case he should be seen and stories carried to either household he figured that the letters would be taken as proof-positive to the contrary.

At the meeting in the woods he said Marion expressed alarm at her condition and he tried to persuade her that her fears were groundless. He offered her the molasses and water as a "fixer" but she said that it would do her no good.

He suggested that she would better catch her car and started away but she called him back and asked if he was going to write to her any more. He said he thought not and started away again.

"Something, I don't know what," made him turn around he said, Marion had taken the poison. He could see she was in convulsion. He returned to her and said she had two more tremors.

Witness said that he became dazed and remembered only flying from the woods. He took a train back to Madison.

After leaving the woods he said he threw away the bottle of diluted molasses. The bottle was recovered nine days later by K. B. Hawkins and others sent out by attorneys whom Orpet had by that time retained.

The case of the defense began at the forenoon session with the opening statement by James H. Wilkerson, chief of counsel for the defendant. The statement was completed in the afternoon and to the surprise of those who have been attending the trial Orpet was the first witness.

Every eye turned toward him as his name was called, a slender youth of marked regularity of feature but nothing gave a natural pallor to distinguish him in a crowd. He wore a dark suit and tie. For six weeks he had sat far down in a big chair beside his mother with an expression which seemed part sullenness and part strain.

His face lighted, however, as he heard his name called and with an encouraging look from Mrs. Orpet, he went forward and was sworn. His voice was plainly audible at first but soon developed periods of weakness. He recollected very little save the purpose of his conversation with Marion.
